

Important additions to today's article in 20 minutes

healthbank is a cooperative that operates the first citizen-owned health data platform. Important: Contrary to what is described in the article, healthbank forms a counter-movement against all those companies that already sell their health data, and that without you - the users - knowing that.

At healthbank the basic rule is that you alone decide which data you want to store - and you alone decide which data you want to share with others. Because: it is your health, it is your data and it is your privacy! We offer you the opportunity to do so and will do everything in our power to support you with the highest possible level of security and trust.

In recent years, many data leaks and hacker-induced events have become known, and the collecting mania of the large online companies has frightened fellow users. That is why healthbank has decided to build a solution.

At the same time, it makes sense to store health data in one place: most people today do not know where their health data is currently stored. A lot of data is stored in completely different silos, at the family doctor, in hospitals, pharmacies, medical service providers and many different insurance companies.

But if this data is stored on a central platform, we can create added value for the healthcare system and primarily for yourself. As a user, you have a better overview of your own health and can share this data with other institutions and individuals. This avoids unnecessary examinations and greatly improves the quality of care, for example, at the drug delivery stage.

Finally, in the healthcare sector, your patient data will only bring added value if they are shared and used. Positive outcomes include therapies through a better health picture of patients, cost savings in the healthcare system and better results in research studies. Here healthbank helps users to realize the value of their data.

However, this only happens if you have given your consent - and without this consent, nothing happens to your data at healthbank. This is what we stand for as a Swiss cooperative.
